PUBLIC MORALITY.

In this land, by the efforts of the Social Purity Society, was being aroused in favor of an alteration of the laws to put upon the police the responsibility of preventing the use of public houses to the detriment of the community. It was assumed to be: Would his congregation agree with him that the indecent exhibitions which too often disgraced the public houses should be prohibited? Would he not rather endeavor to foster vice? These were strong sentiments, but he spoke them thus upon the authority of a play-actor. He knew that the police would not be able to prevent the use of public houses, and he thought that the police would be better off if they ought not to say. Some ministers here had lately been saying very much in praise of them as grand educational agencies that would have been better left unsaid. The position of the police was not a pleasant one. The position of an American actor named John Gilbert, as exemplified by a representative of the New York Herald, who had been arrested for indecent exposure, was not a pleasant one. Especially burlesques, which he characterised as indecent exhibitions of the vilest sort, and an encouragement to the police to arrest him, were not a pleasant thing, he thought, to have to do with. He was sure his congregation would be with him when he said that many of the public-houses had such billiard-rooms where the police would find it very difficult to get into the saloon. Drink was at the bottom of much of the evil, and saloons were the immorality that was to be found. Again, the lewd pictures that were to be seen on the boardings about the city, that our wives and daughters were compelled to look at as they passed, encouraged evil. In order that men might be induced to read the advertising print, nude figures of women were put up on those boardings for them to feast their filthy eyes upon. Again, the character of much of the periodical literature assisted in the development of this spirit. He thanked God that he was taught when he was a boy that it was a wrong thing to read novels, and he knew very little of what was inside the covers of those yellow books beyond what those who had and them had told him. He was not speaking against novel reading in the abstract, but against the low type of literature in those books, which were so eagerly devoured by the young men and women of the city. He was sorry, too, that some of the public newspapers were not more careful than they were in the matter they published. He thanked God for the high moral tone of some of the leading newspapers of the colony, and that some of them were as carefully conducted in this respect as a public press could be. There were others, however, with a small circulation which, whilst they cried down anything like cant and hypocrisy on the part of the rabble and the Church, had nothing to say out the stage and the racecourse. Only yesterday afternoon he took up an evening newspaper in the city which contained such filthy details of an occurrence that he threw it out of the window of the tramcar. It was too dirty to read. Coming nearer home, he admitted that a good deal must be had at the door of the Christian teachers. There was something wrong in the Christian pulpit of to-day, or its power would be greater than it was. The pulpit was all too exclusive—not sufficiently in direct touch with the shrobbings of life as it actually was. It was all very well for ministers to spend three or four days each week in their studies, mastering gorgeous intellectual sermons. Let them to that, but what about the teeming thousands all round their churches who would not listen, who were never seen within the doors of a church? The Christian pulpit was not so faithful as it ought to be to the rescuing of the perishing and caring for the dying. With reference to the Christian few, there was too much selfishness, too little attempt made to grapple with the social evils. Coming to the great question of what must be done, he declared, as a plain Methodist preacher, that the only power that would end us of this impurity was the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ, pure and undefiled, for he had found that whenever the selfishness, leanness, immorality came to the surface, to concluded with an earnest appeal to the young men of the congregation, urging them to engrave into their souls the religion of Jesus Christ.

THE PLAGUE OF PROFANITY.

The Rev. T. B. Truesdell preached last evening in St. Peter's Church, Wollomoolloo, on "The Plague of Profanity." The words chosen for a text were "His mouth full of cursing," the 10th Psalm, 7th verse.

The preacher said that there are sins bearing down upon us with tremendous force, sins which, if not checked, will seriously mar the prospects of this fair land. There is the sin of drunkenness, the sorrows of which can never be fully told; there is gambling, a sin most glaringly prevalent, and the cause of the ruin of many young men who might otherwise have grown up to fill honourable positions in society; and there is a sin far more loathsome—profruity. We can scarcely stir without having our ears polluted with bad language of this kind. It is to be heard in the street, in the tramcars, in the railway trains, and in the teamsters, in the cricket-field, and in the tennis court. Men, women, and children swear. Such is the case in all grades and in all shades. On that night he desired, in the name of Him who said, "Swear not," to enter a solemn protest against this practice. To many it was merely a habit. They mean no harm. But swearing is great evil, and it severs the relationship between those who use it and God Almighty. An old writer had said that he could only account for persons swearing by reason of the third commandment having been written. This writer volunteered the opinion that if there had been no commandment of this character, no one would have thought to take the name of God in vain. Thus there are some persons who act in a certain

...and, because they know that they should do otherwise.
The word came parents to take care of their boys and girls, or he troubled for those who seemed to roam about at will
...boys growing up into manhood, and girls into women.
...he more one thinks of the insults offered to God, the more
...one thinks of his great forbearance. Where would the pro...nounce one to if God dealt with him according to
...is profanity? It is certain that this sin will be ...met with condign and tremendous punishment.
...Job's wife had said to him "Curse God and die,"
...he knew what would then have followed his utterances,
...that, as a word, would ruin his life, but knows it. Sometimes we curse with the heart, and we participate in profanity without making use of our lips. It may seem to us that the oaths we utter are often cast upon the air; but they are remembered by the great Jehovah. The habitual use of profane language often has its commencement in the use of a little slang, which may actually be meaningless, but which grows into the wicked oath. Some persons commit themselves only when they are angry, and they excuse themselves by saying that they made use of the offensive language while in a temper. This is no mitigation of the fence whatever; in fact, these persons could not read of one. In the case of many young men, they get hold of the idea that it is mainly to swear. They think that they must act as others do. They must know, talk fast language, and swear. At first, seems to stick in the young man's throat, and then, after has been stammered out, a blush rises to his cheek—he knows that he is doing wrong. He may think, perhaps, that it is gentlemanly to swear, but it is not so.

 There is no manliness in the habit. When a man swears, he is at once stamped as vulgar. Did the precept ever do anyone any good? If you were in want of any, did it fill your pockets with gold? If you were in pain, did it afford you relief? If you had made a mistake, did it cause the error to be rectified? If you had become angry through having dealings with a stupid person, did it mend matters? If you cursed your enemy, did it do him any harm or you any good? Swearing is a useless practice. Surely there are words in the English language forcible enough for expressing ourselves without resorting to the use of profane terms. Profanity is evidence of the possession of a little mind and a small vocabulary. He would commend those who have used it for the sake of being nable to study the English language or a dictionary, torito could there find as many explicatives as he has need of. When anyone uses bad language let it be written down, and then show it to him in his calmer moments. An act of this kind would often be productive of much good, for it would act to shame the person who used it. To swear is a silly thing and a degrading thing. John Bunyan, before his conversion, was at one time rebuked for swearing, by a person of unfavourable reputation, and he then gave it up. People should think of the One whom they insult every time they swear. Why should the eternal God be insulted? He a tyrant, or is He an enemy? No; He is a father ould a friend, one who watches over us in every way, should God the Father, who ever lives and blesses us, be sulted? Should Christ's name be blasphemed? as He ever unkind? Nay; He came down to us with us, and poured out for us his blood. ight God forbid that there was anyone there at night who would blaspheme the name of Jesus. And the Blessed Spirit, had He ever dealt harshly with any e? Have done with all this blasphemy. The remedy is be looked for, not in the lips, but in the heart. What is anted is a clean heart and a renewed spirit. If there was anyone there that night accustomed to the habit of swear-

g. let him abandon it at once and for ever, for it is a rapid, useless, and degrading thing.

CAPTURE OF A DEATH-ADDER.

A fine death-adder, measuring 30 inches in length, and with a girth of about five inches, was caught at the North shore on Wednesday night by a gentleman, and taken to Mr. Robu, of Messrs. Tost and Robu, the well-known xidernists, of Woolloomooloo. The snake is of a uniform ings from the neck to the tip of the tail. The scales round the head stick out from the neck in the manner peculiar to the death-adder, giving it that fierce appearance which is its most marked characteristic. The two poisonous fangs in the mouth are only too noticeable, as also the third-pointed but quite harmless tip, resembling a sting. The snake is popularly and very naturally supposed to be the maker's offensive weapon. The death-adder, however, keeps its weapons in its mouth, and anyone who may prove by obtaining a specimen and putting it to the test. Cases of recovery from the bite of the add-adder are extremely rare. In a mature, small animal "Snakes," by Mr. Rohu, who brought this animal to our office yesterday morning, is the following interesting formation:—"These snakes inhabit the whole of New South Wales and the greater part of Australia. They produce about 12 young ones annually, which begin to snap and bite directly they are born. They inhabit sandy places, and retire underground from April to December. The food of these snakes consists of frogs, lizards, and very rapidly, small animals. When disturbed, it darts about very rapidly, and does not jump, and only elevates the head about 3 inches from the ground when in the act of striking."

General length is from 29 to 32 inches, the head 2 1/2 inches and 1/2 broad, and the tail 4 inches. The girth round the body is 9 inches."

the speakers at Saturday night's banquet approve of this? Do they mean to say that this is a friendly act on the part of France? Generalities about the great deeds of the French nation do not touch this point. The question is whether a compact solemnly entered into by two great nations shall be suddenly broken without good reason, broken by one of them. Why should not the islands be allowed to remain in the condition they were in before the French troops were landed? The alternative to a French occupation is not a British occupation. All that is necessary is that the status quo should be maintained. Another point to be considered lies in the question of sending French convicts to the Pacific. It is true that the French Government offered, in return for the consent of England to a French annexation of the New Hebrides, a cessation of the system of deporting convicts to islands in these seas. But what certainty is there that an undertaking of that kind would be observed by future French Governments? From the speech of Sir Patrick Jennings, it would appear that the Government of New South Wales have not receded from the position they assumed when the French occupation of the New Hebrides was first made public; but from a cable message which we publish this morning, there seems to be some contradiction between the action of the PREMIER here and that of the AGENT-GENERAL in England. According to this message, Sir SAUL SAMUEL is not only inquiring when the French intend to evacuate the islands, but is strongly protesting against the continued occupation. Is the AGENT-GENERAL, authorised by the Government to take this course, and, if not, will he be allowed to continue it?

Good works happily are not of rare occurrence in the community. There is a spirit of generosity existing here, of which it might be bad taste to boast, but which is certainly observable in many directions. The poorest may have their wants supplied, whether of food, clothing, or shelter. They may look to the State to do this, and, if that fails them, they can generally appeal to private assistance, and if their case is deserving they are seldom repulsed. On Saturday an institution was opened which is a convincing evidence that those in the direct distress may not despair. Some persons are as unfortunate as others in their requirements of food, clothing, or shelter. From natural causes or accident their lives become so imperilled that only the utmost care and nursing in a particular locality are likely to prolong their existence. They inherit the seeds of consumption or acquire chest complaints as a consequence of being in a dire case as though they were stricken down with typhoid or smallpox. To such people Mr. J. H. GODDARD's new free "home" at Redbank is a haven of hope. For nine years that gentleman has maintained a similar institution, though on a smaller scale, at Pictou. He has afforded relief in no less than 400 cases. His free home, numbered 25 per cent. of the whole, but he has had the felicity of seeing 300 persons, who, but for his charity, might have perished, leave his "home" either cured or well on the road to recovery. Considering the insidious nature of the disease, the percentage of lives saved is high. This appears to be due to careful nursing and an excellent climate, and the experience of the past encourages the hope that a number of lives now despaired of may yet be saved. Such actions as Mr. GODDARD's need no commendation. They speak for themselves. Most people will agree with Mr. KENNEDY that it is to be regretted that so many permit their charity to be dispersed after their death. If it were exercised during their lives, better results would follow. Those who cause their charity to be dispersed during their lifetime are in position to see that it is well distributed.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

In accordance with a resolution passed on Tuesday last, the Assembly will on Monday (Monday) for the transaction of business or otherwise. It is understood that the Government are anxious to proceed with the Estimates to-day, but the House will be prevented from going into committee of supply at once by two contingent resolutions. The first is by Mr. Abigail, in favour of the production of certain correspondence in connection with the case of Mr. Quinn, Inspector of Fisheries. The second, which is in the name of Mr. O'Sullivan, is far more important, and, if proceeded with, will in all probability take up the greater part of the sitting. The terms of the resolution are: "That in the opinion of this House steps should at once be taken to initiate a comprehensive system of drainage, irrigation, and irrigation, the money for which (if necessary) to be provided by another loan." The Patents and Designs Bill is the first order of the day on the paper, and it may be that the Government will elect to pass that measure through committee before proceeding with supply.

A summary has been printed in accordance with a resolution of the House, showing the results of the registration of the various estates, for the towns of Bathurst, Wagga Wagga, Goulburn, and Albury, with the amount of trainage for convenience of same to the towns mentioned, commission in England, and charges in Sydney. The following amounts show the cost in England, and the total cost to the time of delivery: Cost in England, Bathurst, £4193 18s. 7d.; Wagga, £2993 18s. 3d.; Goulburn, £2785 9s. 1d.; Albury, £2440 7s. 8d. Total cost: Bathurst, £2925 18s. 6d.; Wagga, £2432 18s. 6d.; Goulburn, £2104 7s. 8d.; Albury, £2794 17s. 4d.

The funeral of the Hon. James Byrne, of Parramatta, took place yesterday afternoon, and was one of the largest ever seen in Parramatta. Amongst those present were the Hon. E. Wood, M.L.C., Hon. G. Thompson, M.L.C., Hon. J. Fletcher, Minister for Mines, Mr. J. F. Burns, M.L.A., Mr. Hugh Taylor, M.L.A., Mr. G. A. Lloyd, M.L.A., Mr. G. Withers, and the Rev. J. B. Waterhouse, J. Fletcher, J. Winpear, Joseph Oram, C. J. Prescott, C. Olden, Graham, Caldwell, McCullum, Graham, and others. The funeral was conducted by the Rev. J. B. Waterhouse, J. Fletcher, J. Winpear, Joseph Oram, C. J. Prescott, C. Olden, Graham, Caldwell, McCullum, Graham, and others. The funeral was conducted by the Rev. J. B. Waterhouse, J. Fletcher, J. Winpear, Joseph Oram, C. J. Prescott, C. Olden, Graham, Caldwell, McCullum, Graham, and others.

On Saturday afternoon the band of the 1st Infantry Regiment, under the direction of bandmaster Sergeant Douglas, rendered a choice selection of music in the Botanical Gardens. The weather was delightful, and the performance of the band greatly added to the enjoyment of those who assembled in the lovely grounds.

A BATTALION parade of the 3rd Regiment Volunteer Infantry took place in the Parramatta Park on Saturday afternoon. Lieutenant-Colonel Holburn was in command, assisted by Adjutant Hill. About 300 men were on parade, and the following companies were represented—Parramatta, under the command of Lieutenant Barnett; Windsor, under the command of Captain Linsley; Richmond, under the command of Lieutenant Guest; Penrith, under the command of Lieutenant Hill. The regimental band, under Sergeant Daley, was also present. The men were drilled for about two hours, and the various movements were executed with precision.

For a considerable time past some of the travellers over the Pictou viaduct, which spans the Long Cove Creek, have had serious misgivings as to the safety of that structure, and have expressed doubts as to its ability to bear the number of passenger and other trains which cross it daily. From inquiries made and a personal inspection of the viaduct, it would seem that there is no need for any doubts as to its capability to bear the heavy weights which are placed upon it. A few days ago no less than six locomotives, weighing in all nearly 400 tons, crossed the bridge at one time, and there was very little oscillation noticeable. The temporary bridge (which is really one-half of the new viaduct) having been opened for traffic, the old structure was cut through, and the work of erecting the other half of the new viaduct was started as speedily as possible.

The Spring Meeting of the Australian Jockey Club commenced on Saturday at Randwick. His Excellency the Governor, the Hon. Lady Carrington, and the suite were present. The attendance numbered from 15,000 to 20,000. There were six events on the card. The Handicap Race was won by Messrs. W. and J. Lee's Coloche, the Trial Stakes by the Hon. J. White's Neophyte, the Derby by the same owner's colt Trident, in the remarkably fast time of 2 minutes 38 seconds; and the Epsom Handicap by Mr. A. Halliday's Zeno. The Spring Stakes were divided by Mr. G. O'Brien's Lord William and the Hon. W. A. Long's Crossroads. The final event, the Walter Handicap, was won by Mr. E. Egan's Industry. The meeting will be continued on Tuesday—Metropolitan Day—the programme of event comprising the Short of 500 sovereigns, the Maiden Stakes of 500 sovereigns, the Maiden Stakes of 500 sovereigns, the Metropolitan Stakes of 500 sovereigns, the J. C. Oaks of 300 sovereigns, and the Sprinter's Handicap of 150 sovereigns.

This annual flower services in connection with the Congregational Church, Owen-street, Woolahra, were held yesterday morning, afternoon, and evening. The church was very prettily and tastefully decorated, the ornamentation consisting chiefly of wild flowers and twigs of the geobung in profusion. In front of the church, the being the handwork of three young ladies associated with the church. In the centre of the two aisles were miniature triumphal arches, and upon the side walls were tablets bearing such inscriptions as "I am the Light of the World" and "God is Love." Waratahs, lilies, and native roses were delicately arranged in convenient parts of the church, and, for the numerous, helped to make up a very pleasing spectacle. The decorations in their entirety were creditably carried out by the members of the church, under the direction of Mr. W. Hewlett. Sermons in harmony with the occasion were preached by the Rev. E. Fox Thomas, and appropriate hymns were sung with enthusiasm. The afternoon service was held at 4 o'clock, and was attended by a large number of ladies and gentlemen. At the close of the service the flowers were collected, and were forwarded to the patients in St. Vincent's Hospital, a few bunches being withheld for presentation to the sick members of the church.

The wildflower and horticultural show which was commenced at Kogarah on Friday, in aid of the building fund of the local school of arts, was continued on Saturday at noon, and attracted persons from all parts of the district. The attendance during the afternoon and evening was very large, the show being patronised by visitors from Sydney and also from the suburbs along the line. Some of the trains from Sydney were crowded to an uncomfortable extent.

Under the leadership of the Rev. E. Fox Thomas, the stalls were kept busily engaged, and disposed of a large quantity of the beautiful flowers in their care. The committee, and in fact all concerned, must have been highly gratified with the amount of business done; and the show from a financial point of view may be considered a success. The refreshment stall, which was well patronised, and the band of the Second Regiment V.I. was present, and added considerably to the enjoyment of those present by playing several selections of music. In the evening the marquee was well lighted with the electric light, and up to the closing hour (10 o'clock) presented a very attractive and animated appearance.

By the last mail from England Mr. John Rae, Under-Secretary for Public Works, received a well-executed medallion of himself in white metal, the work of Sir John Tennant, whose statues of Her Majesty the Queen, H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, and "Australia" adorn the public offices in Macquarie, Bridge, and Phillip streets. The medallion has the double merit of being an artistically finished work and a faithful likeness.

A communication, describing a trip which he recently took with a party to the Batavia River and the Gulf of Carpentaria, for the purpose of forming a new telegraph depot on the Batavia River, relates a number of interesting facts connected with his excursion, and concludes by stating that "overlanders have called this river the Coen. The Main Club was formally opened on Saturday by its president, the Right Hon. W. B. Dalley, who was supported on his right hand by one of the vice-presidents, the Hon. J. H. Want, Attorney-General; on his left was the Mayor of Manly. The banquet took place in the club's billiard-room, a room 36 x 24, which was tastefully decorated, and was attended by a large number of gentlemen, including Dr. Quill, Dr. O'Connor, Mr. Macarthy, and many gentlemen representing the learned professions, merchants, and the Civil Service. After the usual loyal toasts, proposed by the Right Honourable President, the toast of "The Club" was given in eloquent terms by the same gentleman, who spoke of the establishment as a place of importance, beyond what has been already anticipated. The natives, with the exception of some Tanna men who were fighting among themselves, were quiet, and the missionaries were in good health. The French soldiers at Havannah Harbour and Port Sandwich appeared to have quite settled down there, having built houses, and in other ways given evidence of having taken possession.
